The Ladies Of Downtown

The team behind Enchanted Florist

In the city infamously known as the “Marriage Capital of the World” due to its array of venues and ease with which one can acquire a marriage license, two innovative wedding businesses have emerged downtown offering one-of-a-kind products and services.

Inhabit Design, a full-service interior design house founded by duo Heather Soto and Michelle DiMauro, offers an exceptional interior design bridal registry. Similar to setting up a gifting list at a retail store, Inhabit Design’s registry helps the bride and groom select color schemes, furniture, artwork, accessories and beyond. This type of registry allows guests to gift something more personalized than money.

“We found that people who are getting married today are often already living together and have the items which are on common bridal registries,” says DiMauro. “Our bridal registry lets them not only register for things like furniture, but also for design advice from professional interior designers.”

Enchanted Florist, a premium floral boutique managed by owners Kathryn Null and Teresa Stewart, has contributed their extravagant designs to events like the MTV Music Awards, Latin Grammys and American Idol, among others. Enchanted Florist prides itself on being an eco-friendly business and focuses on arrangements ranging from gothic-inspired bouquets to intricate table decorations.

“We had one client who had a tattoo sleeve of owls, and we made her an floral owl centerpiece,” says Stewart on a recent wedding project. “We’re all about customization, and everyone who works here is some type of artist.”

The wedding biz is thriving in Las Vegas and businesses like Inhabit and Enchanted Florist bring renewed aestheticism, creativity and romance to the industry.
